

“What if smarter politics could take us to the Next Level, Then what?”

Giraffes and Jackals were mixed up in Oge, a land not so far from ours...
Giraffes are generally kind, considerate, softer, patient, compassionate & attentive.
Jackals, impatient, hungry for money, or power, or status, or material things. Or want things to just go their way without too much consideration for dreams and hopes of others.

WARNING: This is humour. There are no jackals & Giraffes. In fact we are all Giraffes or humans with endless positive potential. This is a light simplified heartdriven manner to describe a spiritual and more complex mystery behind human behaviour. Please just go along and flip to the next page for the sake of discussion ;-)

We're so busy, but where are we going? We keep running from crisis to crisis. What we need are ... more Jackals to help us!

Poor Jackals. They dominate in Politics, Science, Media. Even Journalism and Economies. They collect money and status yet remain unhappy. As problems continue & grow ...

philipmartin.com

The Jackal's rule dominated our worlds for many centuries. Until one good day ...

FACT!

THAT ...

George Washington, considered as the most important founding father of the USA, warned against political parties. Because he led the effective war effort to expel the British from the USA.

Political parties

George Washington warned about the dangers of political parties to the United States as a whole. These warnings were given in the context of the rise of two opposing parties within the government—the Democratic-Republican Party led by Jefferson, and Hamilton's Federalist Party.

Washington had striven to remain neutral during a conflict between Britain and France brought about by the French Revolution, while the Democratic-Republicans had made efforts to align with France and the Federalists had made efforts to ally with Great Britain.

Washington recognized that it is natural for people to organize and operate within groups such as political parties, but he also argued that every government has recognized political parties as an enemy and has sought to repress them because of their tendency to seek more power than other groups and to take revenge on political opponents.

He felt that disagreements between political parties weakened the government. Moreover, he makes the case that "the alternate domination" of one party over another and coinciding efforts to exact revenge upon their opponents have led to horrible atrocities, and "is itself a frightful despotism. But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism."

From Washington's perspective and judgment, political parties eventually and "gradually incline the minds of men to seek security... in the absolute power of an individual", leading to despotism. He acknowledged the fact that parties are sometimes beneficial in promoting liberty in monarchies, but argues that political parties must be restrained in a popularly elected government because of their tendency to distract the government from their duties, create unfounded jealousies among groups and regions, raise false alarms among the people, promote riots and insurrection, and provide foreign nations and interests access to the government where they can impose their will upon the country.

More factual background

George Washington was not a perfect man. Aware of the immorality of slavery, he was among the first to buy freedom for all his slaves. He did so before he died and long before mankind implemented abolition. Yet fact remained he also profited from slavery during life. He was also a war leader and thus not a pacifist. According to sources he recognized the immorality of slavery during a time that it was not common to do so. He was a man who conscientiously sought to improve his social and persuasion skills and was conscious of his role as a leader and role model with regard to ethics. There are new critical sources who contradict the consensus among historians regarding Washington. Historical science is never over and whilst we respect and welcome historical science's further progress, we do acknowledge George Washington as an inspiration for this document. If each man or woman is capable of good and bad, let us choose to celebrate and learn from each others better qualities than dwell on misdeeds only.

Not party-politics but theme-driven politics, human to human interaction based on conscientious dialogue, constructive behaviour, empathy, connection, personal leadership and good speaking manners is what we see as core aspirations inspired by George Washington and his undeniable wisdom.

“Political parties must be restrained in a popularly elected government because of:

- Their tendency to distract the government from their core duties,
- Create unfounded jealousies among groups and regions,
- Raise false alarms among the people,
- Promote riots and insurrection, and
- Provide foreign nations and interests access to the government where they can impose their will upon the country.”

England and France were supposedly trying to gain influence over the USA through two newborn political parties in the time of Washington. According to some historians, this was part of the rationale behind his view. Washington was a military leader, debate moderator, entrepreneur, educated and socially skilled individual. His peers wanted to make him King which he refused.

Organised abuse of party statutes and procedures by special interest groups is inherently intransparent and potentially disadvantageous to the individual. And difficult to prove.

“However [political parties] may now and then answer popular ends, they are likely in the course of time and things, to become potent engines, by which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people...”

Hey Giraffes, why don't we start a Giraffe Political Movement?

You mean like a Giraffe-party?

Not a party. Just a group of Giraffes who help people & other parties but work together.

Help others? That sounds kinda cool. But Why? And how?

Ehm ... although we won't be a party, we'll have to call ourselves "a party"

Sorry ..

We're not really a Party but calling ourselves a party? Why? I am confused..

Well, the law requires us to call ourselves a party if we want to have a voice during elections

It sucks sort of..

Within the law we should manifest ourselves as constructive helpers of others. Be rolemodels that speak to the better nature of our fellow humans.

Compassion is key

Ok, sounds logical

That's honest. I understand. I'm down with this.

Yeah, so am I. We'll just explain our reasons for this party stuff. Let's do this!

Explain us more later okay?

National Debate[©]

Connection and social innovation through dialogue

Institute for citizen-ship , -supervision, and -initiative through constructive dialogue and groupwisdom

ND aims to bring true "Group wisdom" to life in an inspiring way. By mining it through innovative methods and creative stimulation of community spirit, citizenship and connection between citizens and interested "stakeholders" in a broad sense. ND is a "CBE" or Cross-Border Ecosystem aiming to roll out a unique set of constructive creative technologies to help ensure lasting stability and prosperity in Communities, Industries, Science and Banking. "Gamification" and "Flow Theory" are key ingredients.

The main objective is the prevention or sustainable solution of societal abuses through citizen oversight by the "farming" of group wisdom and structural maintenance of everlasting, calm and connecting debate.

The approach of the Institute is unique and characterized by:

1. Bringing together and connecting people on the basis of "Solidarity"
2. Increase of knowledge and reduction of information overload by truly constructive debate
3. Maintenance of an international eco-system aimed at stability and wellbeing in societies
4. The voluntary and playful referred ND protocol which reflects the core values within the ND space
5. Catalyzing and assisting to finance solution oriented and sustainable (civil) initiatives

(Teeth of the ND)

The ND space breaks down barriers and therefore upholds an inviting attitude towards all stakeholders including interested citizens. To constructively "hack" the world's conventional debating culture.
